BUSINESS NOTICES

JAMES DWYER.

Mr. James Dwyer, the popular proprietor of the book and toy store across the way, was never better fi-ted for the season's trade than now.
His most valuable freight was delayed beyond the time expected, which has thrown him somewhat behind in making his usual grand opening, but he has the goods and he draws the custom, as could be seen any day last week, especially on Saturday, when the store was crowded with customers from every morning until late at night. So heavy is his stock this year that he is totally unable to make anything like a proper display, or to show it to any advantage. In the line of elegant and holiday books he has never had the equal, which are suited to every taste, to every occasion, and to every purse, while he still carries his staple stock.
The same is true of his dolls, and toy-generally, and one could hardly be induced to believe, without actually seeing, that such an endless variety of dolls, small and large, dark and light, with heads and limbs that turn and without; and with and without quacking and gurgling properties, would ever secure purchasers. The latest styles of toys of all shapes, sizes and styles are also to be seen to be appreciated. In the line of precious for ladies, he has also a superior assortment. They embrace every style of ladies' work baskets and boxes; albums, of all sizes and with and without ornamentation; and a very large and elegant collection of toy and other frames for pictures, miniatures and penholders in multitudes of shapes and workmanship; and on without end. In fact, one must see all to appreciate. One thing is deserving of special mention and that is the immense number and endless variety of children's toy books, useful and ornamental. See his advertisement and call at his store.

In speaking of the business notice of Mr. Geo. A. Meeker, it is really only necessary to say it speaks for itself.
Mr. Meeker is a business man, and thoroughly understands business, and comprehends the manner in which to make custom. He has made himself a reputation already as one who means what he says and knows what he is talking about, and when he promises anything, it is a certainty that thing will be performed. Thus he guarantees that all figures and bill him, whether at retail or wholesale, shall be precisely what they are represented to be, and he says no more than or book account, he means no more; and when he tells the poor of the city that at 3 o'clock p.m. on Christmas day, he will open his business for the purpose of distributing to the poor 100 pounds of fresh beef, 100 pounds of roast beef, a big cheese, and fifty gallons of Christmas punch, and that those in any way crippled, minded or unfortunate, will be given the preference, it means that the latter and spirit of his promises will be performed. We need not say, need disabusement—you cannot help it.

BARRATT BROTHERS.
The Messrs. Barratt Brothers are steadily growing in public favor, and their custom in the furniture business, which is their specialty business, is steadily increasing, because they show an appreciation of the wants of the people. In a brief, but pertinent business notice which appears elsewhere, they modestly call attention to their very large and very varied assortment of goods. It has been equally praiseworthy for this notice, and the choice is the result of years of constant study as to the wants of the community in which they do business.
Everything required in a furniture store, and in every style can be found in their stock—from the homely but substantial and durable to the elegant and the costly. They have especially a line of chamber suits which are truly beautiful, and would make a noble and compelling to become a bride, or any wife, however much she may be convinced to Caudle lecture, to hold her peace in its presence. They are, in fact, prepared to suit every taste and every want, and sell at the lowest possible margin, desiring quick returns rather than large profits. Their place is the old Salt Lake House, directly opposite F. Auerbach & Bro's.

GEORGE ARBOGAST.
No candy store, business house, or confectionery establishment enjoys a better reputation for the purity and general excellence of its goods than Mr. George Arbogast's, popularly known as the "Oyster Grotto." Not only is it noted for the purity of its candies, but also for the artistic manner in which they are gotten up. This city used to send thousands of dollars away every year for what are known as fancy French candies; and Mr. Arbogast has done as much as any person to keep that money here, by manufacturing candies that are in every way the equal of the imported French candies in appearance, and infinitely superior in purity and quality.
Notwithstanding the extensive facilities for the manufacture of candies, it has such a stock of custom that only with extra exertions was it able to begin to prepare for the extra demands incidental to the holidays.
Mr. Arbogast is also agent for Utah for the exclusive manufacture of supplying the demand of the public with bivouacs in every known style. The Grotto is fitted up in the most becoming manner, and after reading the advertisement, all should give the place a call and see how inviting it looks.

LITTLE & BOUNDY.
Little & Boundy merely announce that they wish to call attention to some of their holiday goods this morning, and enumerate a few. It is probably the truth, that no store in the city packed more full with goods than that of this firm, and it is certain that no firm can offer to the public a more varied, elegant, costly and chaste selection than they do. It must be remembered that the stock by it is made up of goods of the best quality, and they have an immense and beautiful supply; but they also have a large stock of toys, and an unsurpassed stock of Chinaware, glassware and crockeryware, in every style, and at all prices. Of vases, the number is great, the variety endless and the styles magnificent. One of the most beautiful and chaste branches of their goods, and therefore most suitable for holiday presents, excepting perhaps the very best of the variety of statuary and bronzes. This embraces not only those of the terra cotta class, but also those made from the purest and most genuine marble; and being works of art and things of beauty, are for all. No one will regret a visit to Little & Boundy's.

REWARD!

$1,000

Among the many enterprises made by firms to attract customers and gain public favor, one of the best and most novel is that adopted by Wm. Jennings & Sons; and while the modesty of the method is in itself commendable, it has the added effect of being a constant reminder to the public of the firm's large stock of flowers and other articles incidental to their trade. However, we commend you to your wires; and your wives will commend themselves to the milliner.

W. JENNINGS & SONS.
The business notice of the firm of Messrs. Button & Boyan is different from the others, and as all will admit, is the most attractive to the public. For it speaks of hats and bonnets, and feathers and hair, which of all things on earth, not even excepting dresses, are deemed of more importance to the ladies on the subject of apparel than all other articles combined. No lady, it is a bold statement, but we venture to freely, ever passes 128 Main street without casting at least a side glance at the delightful display of straw, felt and other hats, of every style, and trimmed in the height of art, at the feathers and waving plumes; at the bonnets and ribbons, and at the lone trees of waving hair, a single one of which, according to Pope, "Man's triest race ensure." Besides the ladies of the firm carry a large stock of flowers and other arti-
themselves to the milliner.
